Consumers Spent $8,468,000 in Co.

NEW YORK, Apr. 16 - Appomattox County's contribution to the national economy, through local consumer spending, was greater last year than it was in 1960.

The county did its full part, the figures show in helping to raise the gross national product (GNP) to the record high of $516 billion, reached at the end of the last fiscal year. The total was $504 billion a year earlier.

The facts and figures are brought out in Department of Commerce reports and in data contained in other marketing studies.

The GNP, which is recognized as a leading economic index, is the market value of all goods and services produced in a year. It is a barometer that measure the rises and dips in the nation's business activity.

Included in the GNP, also, are the amounts spent for industrial expansion and the amounts spent by the various levels of government.

These factors represent only a minor part of the total, however. The bulk of the GNP is made up of consumer spending for goods and services, which is 65 percent of all business done in this country.

In Appomattox County, in the past fiscal year, such consumer outlays came to a robust $8,468.00

It marked a gain over the previous fiscal year, when the local volume was $8,348,000.

In Appomattox County, in the past fiscal year, such consumer outlays came to a robust $8,468.00

A breakdown shows that $6,830,000 or the 1961 total was from retail customers. Next to retail consumer spending, the biggest amount spent locally for services.

With the cost of goods fairly steady throughout the year, little of the increase in retail sales can be attributed to price inflation.

There was a noticeable rise, however, in the cost of services. It caused the consumer price index in advance, about one per cent, according to the Commerce Department.

The Administration expects the current year to be one of economic progress, with overall gains greater than those that were achieved last year.

By the middle of 1962, it predicted, if the situation does as expected, the GNP should be at $565 billion rate or better. As for the rest, the key to the answer lies with consumer spending and what he does with his money.

PLEASE RETURN LIBRARY BOOKS

There, they will be sorted and returned to the librarian to which they belong.
